TRACY O'KEEFE checks out Jennette Lamb's groceries, which consist of a bottle of Coke and Craig Abrahamson.

Students develop

Check it out! Is the theme chosen by the yearbook staff after much thought, and it seemed to fit very well. A great deal was accomplished in every area. For instance, students' attitudes improved and clubs grew stronger and larger.

People in our school appeared to look younger then they really were. The seventh graders came here, and they were the shortest students ever. Also, seniors had always thought about how it would be their last year. When it happened, everything was different, not what they believed it would be.

Student life became very active. Students became involved with personal and group activities. Students were more involved in sports, clubs, plays and academic studies.

Fall play: big success

$T_{\text {b }}$ Anne Frank, was declared a big success. A large crowd showed up to watch the actors depict a family of Jews in hideout during the Nazi reign.

The entire play takes place in the attic of Mr. Frank's (Chris Pearson) and Mr. Kraler's (Tim Gibbs) warehouse in Amsterdam during the German occupation of World War II.

The rest of the cast included Kirsten Nagy as Miep, Stephanie Akers as Mrs. Van Daan, Tony Yost as Mr. Van Daan, Greg Scherer as Peter Van Daan, Danielle Reimer as Margot Frank, Gerri Bushkowski as Mrs. Frank, Linda Klein as Anne Frank and Dennis Cahill as Mr. Dussel.
Mrs. Cindy Lopez, director, said she chose The Diary of Anne Frank because most of the plays the past have been comedies. "I wanted a challenge for the actors and something different for the audience."
The performance seemed to touch the crowd. The audience was particularly impressed when the cast gave up their curtain call for a moment of silence for all those who died during the Nazi reign.

Mrs. Lopez says she was pleased with the reactions of the people who did come. She was disappointed, however, to hear that many people would not come because it was a sad play.
"They want to be entertained without their emotions showing," said Mrs. Lopez.

A few days before the play was presented, a guest speaker came to Clear Creek to talk about his experiences in a concentration camp during World War II. Mr. Irving Shaffer touched both faculty and students while telling about his personal experiences.

After his presentation, Mr. Shaffer stayed about one and a half hours to talk to the cast. Mrs. Lopez said that she thinks his talk helped the cast members. "It helped them to feel the emotions more", Mrs. Lopez said.

The Clear Creek Tower Players presented the play, October 4-6, in the Clear Creek Secondary School Tower Theatre.

Homecoming: snowy, cold  Snow and cold temperatures

 marked the homecoming celebration, October 15-20, an unforgetable one. Cancellation of school Tuesday because of snow-packed roads, shortened the week by one day.The weather did not phase the student body's enthusiasm, though. During school hours, students revealed their spirit by dressing up in costumes, a different one each day: Monday, Dress Up/Switch Day; Wednesdav. Supdressed Desire's Day; Thursday, Punk Rock/50's Day; Friday, Blue and Gold Day.

The pep assembly, highlighted by crowning of King Marty Brown and Queen Shelley Moore, also included four breakdancers.

The parade, consisting of six floats, the junior varsity and varsity cheerleaders, and the marching band, began at noon, Friday.

The powder puff football game, resembling a mud wrestling tournament more than a football game, followed the parade. The SeniorFreshman team pulled through with a 14-0 victory over the JuniorSophomore team despite the mud, snow, and low temperature. During half time of this wild and exciting event a tug-of-war contest was won by by the sophomore class.

That night the Diggers outscored the Holy Family Tigers, 28-8, while Clear Creek residents and alumni watched enthusiastically.

The sophomore class finished in first place overall in the competition for the Spirit Cup.

Saturday night, a successful dance, The Tiger Hunt," sponsored by Student Senate finished off Homecoming Week.

According to Mrs. Mary Lou Helseth, sponsor, this was the first time a profit had been made sponsoring the homecoming dance.

Student enhance atmosphere

Exchange students coming from around the world, representing Columbia, Germany, Chile and Brazil, enhanced the school.

Senior Jose Meji from Columbia spent the year living with Mr. Phil Clark and attending classes. Friendly and outgoing, Meji eagerly told everyone about his country. Although he had not skied before, in a short time Meji mastered the sport and went skiing almost every weekend at Loveland.
Junior Ivica Schlandt came from Germany, spending two years with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rutherford. She enjoyed horseback riding, skiing and working at Loveland. She also enjoyed working in art class and designed the prom logo "Fantasy."

Lorina and Evan Oliveros came from Chile. Lorina attended senior classes for a month. Evan, sophomor, stayed all year.
"Evan is always chasing girls but he can't catch them," said a friend Brendan Anderson.

Johannes Eck of Germany spent several weeks with the Bob Gibbs family. Fellow student Jo Swem said, "Johannes is really smart in math analysis; he was here for a week and got the highest grade on the test."

Eck enjoyed going on the senior trip to Chatfield Reservoir in May. He had fun playing volleyball, riding horses and showing off his soccer skills. Most seniors will remember Eck when his horse took him for a ride instead of Eck taking the horse for a ride.

Denise Castro from Brazil was placed in seventh grade, but returned home after two weeks because she had too much trouble with the English language.

EVI SCHLANDT happily walks out of Mr. Bob Warmack 3rd hour class.

EVAN OLIVERSO, Pat Smith and Stephani Cooley go over their test in 3rd hour Spanish class.

AFTER ANOTHER day of riding Tim Petek washes his tri-motor Yamaha at the car wash.
GREG DERINGER pumps in some gas at the Husky station.

Students live after hours

After the $3: 10$ toned sounded, students moved into doing their own things. Some went to their favorite hang-out. Others went to their jobs.

One the most popular hangouts for upperclassmen was 7-11 in Idaho Springs. There, students loafed and talked to friends, discussing evening plans. Dairy King also attracted some who wanted to relax and spend time with friends.

A large percent of the student body worked to earn money to finance their entertainment by working at part time jobs in the county.

Because of Clear Creek's small size, most enjoyed going down to Denver where they might catch a movie at Union Six Theatres, cruise Colfax Avenue or hit a night spot. Occasionally, they stopped at McDonald's or Taco Bell to eat and just chat with friends.

SHANNON LOCKNIKAR uses her secretarial skills at the Idaho Springs First National Bank.

Cast relates to characters

$T$hree sold out nights, the result of two months of hard work, proved the success of the spring musical Grease. Director Mrs. Cindy Lopez said that the seventy students involved, ranging from seventh to twelth grade, could relate to this musical more than others due to the faster tempo of the songs and dances and the age of the characters in it. The actors and actresses could understand their feelings and actions.

Instead of just having two or four lead parts there were ten. This allowed more students to participate as an actual character with lines rather than just dancing.

Graduation finally arrives for 67 seniors

On June 1 at 10 a.m., the band began playing "Fanfare and Processional" and suddenly time had come for the 67 seniors to march down the aisle of the gym and begin graduation ceremonies.

Seniors entered the gym, boys in blue robes and girls in white, in groups of two carrying yellow longstemmed roses and a stem of colorful, handmade silk flowers made in China and given to the class by Doug Friend.

All marched proudly; some were tearful and some jovial. Craig Abramson escorted Christine Hansen and class mascot, Chester in a toy remote controlled jeep.

Cameras snapped and strobes flashed as relatives took pictures of this long-awaited event.

During the traditional ceremony, seniors were reminded that at least 75 percent of them had been together since kindergarten. Seventythree percent planned to continue their education; many had received sizable scholarships either for academics or athletics. Twenty-eight percent of these planned to enter out-of-state colleges.

Nine percent planned to enter the military and 15 percent into the work force.

Following graduation addresses by Todd Lancaster and Pat Smth, cosalutatorians, and Marty Brown, valedictorian, Mr. Bob Warmack, history teacher, advised the class to nurture the friendship of their parents. He also praised them for the "super job setting a good example for the rest of the school."
Then it was time for diplomas. As names were called by Dr. Floyd Travis, Mr. Richard Casperson, board chairman, presented these. After receiving diplomas, each senior found his parents in the audience and gave them the flowers as well as hugs and kisses.

At baccalaureate, May 27, in the Tower Theater, Stephanie Akers gave the invocation and presented roles. Linda Klein presented a slide show of senior and baby pictures.

Principal Dick Bryant praised the class and presented each senior who had been on the honor roll with an Olympic-type medal to be worn at graduation.

Many fads popular with some

More than ever before, fads were a big part of Clear Creek.
In the fall girls started wearing madonna clothes and fluorescent clothes. Baggie pants and sweaters, the foreign look, was certainly in, too.

Several of the girls wore the madonna look. These included Brandee Wagner, Amy Webster, Lea Casperson, Mylee Casperson, Monique Manning, Billy Jean Bruce, Wendi Williams and Barbie Fiveash.

The next fad started in late March when senior boys pierced their ears and began wear Hawaiian shirts.

Boys wore different style earrings. Some wore dangling ones; others wore crosses or stud earrings. During graduation boys wore their ' 85 emblem as earrings.

For girls it was a different story. They had fluorescent earrings: green, yellow and orange.

They also wore different earrings in each ear, some matched and some did not; some were long, dangling earrings, others either wore in a variety of small shapes or colored studs.

New Wave from San Francisco was also in, especially the short cropped pants, worn with baggie sweaters and high heels.

The short hair styles for both girls and boys were also in style. Some girls shaved their hair in the back on their necks and had long bangs in the front.

Some of the kids had a very hard time accepting these new fashions that hit. Some kids could not afford most of them. Some of the ones who could not accept the new fashion made their very own individual fad by just being themselves.

Looking back over year

The school year began slowly and eventually began to pick up. The activities started developing and excitement grew.

The first was a visit from Mrs. Nancy Habib, a teacher representative from our sister school in Ammon, Jordon. She told about their school and its surrounding in comparison to ours.
Next was a visit from Mr. Reed Lewis. He was a teacher who travelled the country in order to tell of and show about his trip in 1976. This trip was an exact reconstruction of the LaSalle expedition in the early nineteenth century.

Eric Roark was a fortunate student who caused excitement. Roark entered a contest in which he won an Apple II-E computer and software and $$ 5,000$. The computer and software were donated to the school.

The idea of travel through space had always fascinated Ms. Betty Schoon. Her trip almost came true. Ms. Schoon was one of the finalists in a nationwide search for a teacher to travel of the space shuttle.

The community as well as the school was excited about the new Safeway store opening May 9. This allowed convenient shopping for all of Clear Creek county.

People

Board changes occur

$T$he Board of Education consisted of five members. In the fall these members were Mr. Bob Ellis, Mrs. Polly Werlin, Mrs. Peggy Stokstad, Mr. Gene Anderson and Mrs. Joan Brown.

In January, Mr. Jack Smith replaced Mrs. Stokstad, who resigned because she was elected County Commissioner.

On May 7, four new members were elected: Mr. Richard Casperson, Mr. Todd Lowther, Mrs. Chris Gibbons and Mrs. Marjorie Bell, forming a board with Mrs. Brown as the only veteran.

The major issue of the fall board was financing. Several meetings addressed the funding of the Early Childhood program and reviewing extra-curricular activities.
In order to raise salaries of all District employees, the Board presented a referendum to the public in the fall. Voters passed this with a 2-1 margin.
Other workers in the Distret included Dr. Floyd Travis, Mr. Walt Phillips, Mr. Chuck Eklof and three secretaries: Mrs. Katie Jackson, Mrs. Cam Matejcik and Mrs. Jeanne Biggs who kept the District Office organized and running.

Positive changes occur

$T$hree major changes occurred in the administrative system. These changes included Mr. John Klieforth's becoming assistant principal after several years of teaching Business Education. Another, Mr. Doug Potter earned his counseling certificate and became middle school counselor, replacing Mrs. Laura Bennhoff. Also, a new form of discipline, In-school suspension (ISS) was implemented.

Mr. Richard Bryant, principal, explained that he felt the students' attitudes had changed compared to last year.
"Our students seem to be more conscious about their academic work," said Mr. Bryant.

The new discplinary procedure, ISS, involved student punishment for misbehavior in classes or at school. The student gathered their homework, then spent the assigned day doing each classes' homework. The students were not allowed to speak to anyone, also the students were allowed two breaks.

Many members of the staff felt positive about ISS and believed the students' attitudes improved.

Staff fills needs

Yes, we enjoy our work," agreed members of the support staff. Mr. West Carrington, head custodian said, "I enjoy my job, it's never boring. There's always something going on, which gives me a good chance to meet everyone."

Sometimes we forgot about how important a support staff were. Although around this place that was a very difficult thing to forget. The custodian staff kept the school very clean, the bus drivers had the students where ever they needed to be, and the kitchen workers did well in preparing both breakfast and lunch every day.

Breaking in new friends: fun

hen the seventh graders came to Clear Creek Secondary School, they brought about a new fad. This fad became popular, something different, something original. This something different was twirling, twisting, and bopping to the music.

These students participated in may Break Dancing competitions over the summer. Some of these competitions were at the Buffalo Bar and dancing on Miner Street during Gold Rush Days.

Each had his own style of clothing, mainly black pants with a lot of zippers, black shirts, and many different colors of handkerchiefs.

Usually when seventh graders come to the "Big high school" they are frightened, but these students came showing their stuff, an original way for them to make friends, break dancing.

High  school  life frightens 8th graders

 "T hose stupid eighth graders! They're always in the way!"Many upperclassmen said this as they tried to get through the halls at the beginning of the year.

Slowly creeping down the crowded hallways, dodging into crevices and behind bathroom doors, the terrified eighth graders tried to find their classes.

Even though they had had one year of experience in high school, the old fears remained.

Slowly the fears of the 114 eighth graders subsided, and they became accustomed to the routine of high school and became less fearful of the upperclassmen.

New friends from Idaho Springs, Evergreen, and Georgetown also helped erase the fears felt as school began.

Later in the year, participating in football, volleyball, basketball, ski team, wrestling, cross country, dramas, choirs, bands, and track allowed them to feel at home.

With the addition of In School Suspension, many eighth graders learned the pros and cons of misbehaving in the classroom or anywhere on campus.

Fear gave way to success in the classroom and in extra-curricular activities.

High fashion attracts girls

 F$\boldsymbol{I}$ ads or high fashions fade in and out quickly. To be in, girls girls wore preppy penny loafers, argyle socks and polo shirts with sweaters over their shoulders to add that finishing touch to an outfit.

Varnets, Levi's and T-shirts worn with a tie competed with the preppy look for some.

Ripped sweatshirts, high pumps, tight jeans suited the more contemporary dressers. This group also wore huge earrings to match their outfits.

In addition to dress, both boys and girls wore short hair styles.
Eighth graders selected from these different styles to suit their daily moods.

Freshmen improve

 A fter two years, the 122 freshmen looked at many changes. No longer call Rugrats by upper classmen, they buckled down to earn better grades, knowing these grades counted on their transcripts for college.They also faced new teachers: Mr. Conradt Fredell, Mrs, Wendy Naylor and Mr. John Gould and his strict classroom.

So many freshmen took foreign language that another Spanish I class, taught by Mrs. Mary Lou Helseth, was added to accommodate the increased demand.

Sophs show spirit

Walking down the school ramps one saw a variety of familiar faces. Among these were 103 sophomores who had great school and class spirit as well as high academic achievement.

To show their school and class spirit, sophomores entered and won most of the Homecoming Week competitions, including first place for their float.

The class showed its spirit in other ways throughout the year by not only attending sports events and encouraging the crowd to yell for their teams, but they also participated in other extracurricular activities such as the plays, band, and choirs.

At semester seven were named to the honor roll. Three of these had four point averages and were placed on the Principal's Honor Roll: Allyson Anthony, Gerri Bushkovski, and Meg Stiff. The other four had all A's and B's: Jonnie Pierson, Danielle Reimer, Mindy Soule, and Chris Toman.

Individuals excell

M oney became an issue for sophomores. In order to earn money, the class cheerfully worked many basketball concessions.

As Brent Buckley said, "We were making money for dances and other school activities."

While earning money was a priority for the class, individuals excelled, bringing honor to themselves, their class, and their school. Two of these were Jack Terry, showing great ability in both football and ski team and Brian Scherer , earning recognition in basketball.

Girls also excelled in extra-curricular activites. Gerri Bushkovski developed drama skills and was cast in the fall and spring plays. Meg Stiff gained recognition as a cross country runner.

Whether working as a group or individuals, the class showed its unique qualities.

J unior class gained four members, three girls and one boy to bring their total to 91. These included Bunny Romero, Shannon Ganer, Aastri Anderson, and Todd Crosbie.

In addition to gaining new class members, Juniors worked together as a group to become winners. One way they were winners was in building their float for homecoming. Their efforts paid off with a second place award.

This class was the first in years to earn a large sum of money. Selling crafts, working codncessions, and sponsoring a booth at the International Christmas Fair in December increased their treasury to $$ 3,000$.

Seniors endure pressures

$T$off classes or the final chance to bring up grade point averages. It was scary and exciting, the beginning and the end.

During the last most pressured high school year, midst the mind-boggling conflicts, seniors felt the pressures of new, but close responsiblilites.

Personal goals and college decisions had to be endured. Mail flowed in from colleges and the Armed Forces. The choices were numerous, yet only one could be chosen.

Seniors were anxious about graduating and going into the future, yet frightened of the real world. They investigated many different options after graduation.

Most seniors planned on going to a four year college. The ohters planned on working directly after graduantion or joining the armed services.

The senior year, conflicting but happy, was the final year together. Seniors endured pressures throughout the entire year.Pressures of maintaining or improving grades or extracurricular activities pushed some. Others decided to participate in sports, drama, or other extras during this last year.

Culp, Kiefer enjoy mechanics

Seniors enjoyed hobbies that included everything from restroing autos to drawing unicorns.

Among those who enjoyed working with restoring and repairing vehicles were Lloyd Culp and Sam Kiefer.

About four years ago, Lloyd traded a 1938 Chevrolet truch for a 1933 Chevrolet coupe. Immediately, he began working to earn the money necessary to completely restore the run-down car.

In order to earn the $$ 7,000$ he invested into his project, Lloyd worked for a construction company and at a restaurant washing dishes.

Although Lloyd did most of the work himself, he gives his father much credit for the completed product, saying his dad did all the fabrication and helped with the labor, too.

Sam owned a 1969 Chevrolet truck that required repairs costing about $$ 1,600$.

To finance both the repairs and a mini-sleeper, Sam worked at Hidden Valley Getty Station. However, some of the actual repairs were made in classes at Warren Tech.

Sam, who became interested in car reparis through his dad, considered auto repairs a hobby.

This hobby served another purpose, though. Because he owned his truck and added a sleeper, Sam could afford to participate in more rodeos and ride more bulls.

WORKING ON the chassis of his coupe gives Lloyd Culp a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction.

Girls fascinated with hobbies

Hobbies were a pastime for most seniors. Two girls who had particularly interesting ones were Melissa Secrease and Amy Webster.
Melissa colledted various Star War's paraphernalia from the time the series started. This collections includes Star Wars' cards and Gremlin cereal boxes.

Not only collecting items consumed Melissa's time, but she also attended sceince fiction conventions that previewed movies before they were marketed.

Amy, a very talented person when it comes to pencil or pen and ink drawings, created many fictional animals. These included unicorns, three-headed dragons, and horses.

Teacher Mrs. Carolyn Snow, said "Amy is a very talented lady. She has never copied a drawing or painting."
Besides fictional characters, Amy experimented with portraits that turned out just as well as her fictional characters.

Seniors look to graduation

Graduation was every seniors' goal. First these 68 seniors made sure that they had the required 24 credits to graduate. Then they made sure to pass required classes such as Amereican Government, English, and Con-Ed.

Early in January, the graduation committee, selected by Assistant Principal John Klieforth at the beginning of the school year, met with sponsor Mrs. Jan McBride to begin graduation plans.

At the meeting Eric Roark, Stephanie Akers, and Hugh Dolly choose graduation announcements and set the date for a meeting of the class to made additional plans.

A week later a group of 10 met to decide on the colors of graduation robes. Although some wanted rose and gray, the group chose blue and white ones for gals was the administration's offer to pay rental fees if the class wore school colors.

Strong voice: goal of S S

Student Senate, as well as Middle School Student Council worked hard in organizing activities and raising money.

Together they planned an overnight camp out at Camp Wilaha. There, they participated in leadership activities and just basically got to know each other better.

Student Senate organized all homecoming festivities, including the Powder Puff Game, dress-up days and decorating for the dance.

At Christmas time, Student Senate sponsored a booth at the International Christmas Fair. There, they sold chili and cookies, This helped to raise some money.
Throughout the year, Student Senate worked on building more responsibility for the Senate and having a stronger voice in school policies, such as the attendance policy. Eric Roark was president first semester and Chris Gould second semester.
Middle School Student Council worked very hard to raise money through various fund raisers. They sponsored six dances which raised close to $$ 500$, said Mrs. Sue Gould, sponsor.

A Copper-Silver Drive was organized and raised $$ 137.45$. All this money was sent to Red Cross to help send food to Ethiopia. Student Council was also affiliated with other Red Cross service projects.

The biggest goal of Middle School Student Council was to provide dances. "It is the only social function for the kids and we always have a good attendance," says Mrs. Gould.

Officers included Scott Gould, president; David Briddle, vice president; Liz Howell, secretary; and Lea Casperson, treasurer.

TAMMY NAGY, Lea Casperson, and Ashley Darrell work hard decorating for a Middle School dance sponsored by Middle School Student Council.

Members learn togetherness

Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) did a lot of things with helping people with real life typing, working in business books and learning secretarial skills.

They did a lot of fun activities too, such as taking skiing trips, selling Val-O-Grams, sponsoring a bake sale and concessions, and having a fund raiser for the Beth Miller Fund by collecting cans of food.

WAYNE EDDY sells a hot dog to Mr. Kevin Brody; Brett Jones also helps with concessions.

May 1, FBLA members had an end of the year potluck banquet. Following the meal installation of officers and awards, they had a slide presentation showing all students' years' projects.

To show their appreciation for all her hard work they gave Miss Jolene Riley, sponsor, a purple leaded glass iris to add to her collections.

"HEY GUYS come on let's hit the slopes," says Clay Straub to his fellow mates of FBLA.

MISS JOLENE RILEY and Beth Perri are ready to hit the ski slopes at Loveland on their ski day for FBLA.

Sales net large profits

Valuable learning experiences were gained by Distributive Education Clubs of America (DECA) members through entering competitons, selling and making mums and Val-O-Grams, working in concessions and attending socials.
January 25, Tammy Gallegos, Jenny Saunders, Craig Clifford, Patty Cambell, Monique Manning, Stephane Cooley and Michele Blicharz entered competitions and attended workshops at Red Rocks.

During homecoming week, students earned up to $$ 686$ making mum corsages. In December they sold Santa-Grams earning $$ 200$.

MR. CHIP BISHOP was the sponsor for DECA.

26 Thespians: dedicated

International Thespians Society was described by Mrs. Cindy Lopez as an Honor Society for drama students.

To become a Thespian, many hours of dedication must be put into the work of producing a play, said Mrs. Lopez.

The requirments include performing two or more plays and earning at least ten points. One achieves these points by participating in a production and working on stage crews.

The Thespians Society, Troop No. 1079, has been in our school for five years.

Special Thespians are Clydia Smith, Tim Smith, Mary Brown, Lynn Fiveash, Suzanne Friend, Ellis Etheridge, Janice Bushkovski, Shirley McCormick, Betty Schoon, Cindy Moe. These adults have contributed their time to help to make the productions for the season.

MARSHALL CONWAY, looking very proud, is escorted off the stage by Stephanie Cooley after receiving an award for Toughest Greaser.

McBride: FHA coordinator

Mrs. Jan McBride has been a part of the Future Homemakers of America association for several years. Until two years ago, Mrs. McBride had only taught the small group at CCSS. Then she gained a position as State officer for Clear Creek and Jefferson Counties.
Mrs. McBride assumed office in March of 1983 and ended it March of 1985. She feels that being the leader for this organization has helped both the classes she taught and her personally. During the summer, many competitions were planned for the girls to attend in the Jefferson High School.

MRS. JAN MCBRIDE spends her free time preparing for the State office she holds for FHA.

FHA MEMBERS: Sharon Kuenzle, Mary Paulson, Tina Brethauer, Sharon Robinson, Pam Steinbrink, Alicia Crum, Cheryl Wilfong and Mrs. Jan McBride, adviser.

NHS increases membership

National Honor Society, advised by Mr. John Hallberg, increased to 16 members following induction of six members in the fourth quarter.

Those student who upheld a 3.8 average throughout their freshmen and sophomore years or who as juniors or seniors attained this average were eligible for NHS membership.
Three other qualifications in addition to scholarship were character citizenship and service.
For the first time, those students who were eligible were required to make application for membership. Then a teacher committee selected those who became members of NHS.

Although NHS is an honor organization, attempts were made by Mr. Hallberg to involve members in school and community projects.

Check it out

or the third year in a row the opposition had to be aware of the Diggers as four teams qualifyed for state while the others made strong bids in the Metro League.

After a slow start, the football team came on strong to advanced to the frist round of the State playoffs. Their comeback was led by Todd Lancaster on offense and Gerald Hudson on defense.

The harriers finished third at District contest, thus assuring a spot at the State Meet. This was the first Digger Cross Country team to qualify for state since qualifying has been required. The Diggers running attact was led by Pat Smith and Hugh Dolly.

The wrestling team had a much improved program. Outstanding grapplers were the Evans brothers, Brad and Blake, and the two state qualifiers Cameran Williams and John Brenna. This was the finest season in the history of the ski teams as they finished fifth at state and had 16 members qualify for state. The team was led by Tracy Romarine and Mike Riopelle. Other fall and winter sports included volleyball and basketball. The injuryprone volleyball team suffered through a disappointing season. The boys' basketball team finished fourth in the Metro for the third consecutive year. While the Diggerettes struggled through a tough season with only three upper classwomen.

During the spring track and baseball took over. The track team achieved excellence through the efforts of returning members. Van Swanson, and Marty Brown led the baseball team to a fine season.

Digger athletes checked out success.

Squads earn

spirit ribbons

Cheerleaders excelled as a result of summer cheerleading camp and hard work. Wendy Naylor, first-year sponsor, worked with 12 varsity and seven junior varsity cheerleaders.

A total of 18 girls attended the International Cheerleading Foundation camp at Colorado University in August to learn cheers, chants, mounts, and safety precautions. The varsity squad won nine ribbons and the "spirit frisbee". The junior varsity squad earned six ribbons.

Dedication was the key to success. Varsity tried to make every movement perfect and precise. A special closeness among them sometimes hindered their dedication but not too much as they wanted to look and do their best while cheering.

The J.V. squad began with no previous experience. With practice, they learned to pick up new movements and cheers quickly.

The eighth grade squad attended a one-day camp over the summer. Their talent exceeded that of any other middle school squad. Karen Isabella, the sponsor, said, "They work well together and do well making up their own cheers."

 for the varsity football team who finished third in the Metro League and defeated Denver Lutheran 15-12 to qualify for the state playoffs. "The key to the team's success was that they were all winners," said Coach Lyn Darrell.In order to be a championship quality team, everyone on the team must sacrifice and excell for the benefit of the entire team. Clear Creek players did this, according to Coach Darrell.

This varsity team followed along in the winning tradition by being the third straight team to go to the state playoffs.

FOOTBALL

Spirit: Key

$T$he middle school football team was described as very successful by Coach Skip Bennett.

The team finished with 38 potentially good football players, said Coach Bennett and Coach Bob Warmack.

This middle school football team was considered very high spirited. Their spirit showed both on the playing field and during practice.

Team leaders for the seventh grade were Brad Floretin, quick tailback: David Roe and Phil Jones as tackles. Both these tackles who were bigger than the varsity's were also considered team leaders.

The eighth grade team leader was Robert Lynn, a hard hitting linebacker.

The eighth graders toughest opponent was Leadville, the best team in eight years.

The seventh grader's toughest opponent was also Leadville, said the coaches.

The leadville game was very good but Leadville came out on top, 6-0.

Coach Boyer also said, "Tracy Romarine was team leader and also best player. She was first team All-Metro League and Most Valuable Player."

Varsity's record following a 14 game season was 6-8.

Of the opponents, Coach Boyer said Holy Family was the toughest because of the size and talents of their girls.

Coach Amy Colladay, junior varsity coach, also described her team as improved.
"Every one of the 12 players tried harder and played better every time they got their chance to play."

Alicia Crum and Allyson anthony earned best players awards. Anthony was also team leader, according to Coach Colladay.

Enthusiasm: girls' key

$T_{\mathrm{ne}}$ volleyball teams not only made a strong showing on the court with both teams finishing with 500 records, but they had a strong showing off the court as well.

According to a very jubilant Coach Debbie Ruckreigle, "This was one of the most exciting teams I have ever coached because the girls were so enthusiastic and supportive of one another."

Coach Shelly Donahue's seventh grade team shared this same positive attitude and at times seemed almost cocky, she said.
The eighth grade team was described as coachable by Coach Ruckreigle.She said that she could call time out (during a game) when things weren't going well and convince her girls they were the better team. Then, they would usually come through.
The well-balanced eighth grade team was led by captians Susan Robinson, Amy Long, and Lisa Miller through a tough schedule which included Middle Park, who could be building a dynasty according to Coach Ruckreigle.
Coach Donahue described her team as friendly. She said, "They all seemed to be friends and get along with each other better than any other middle school team I've coached."

The toughest opponent Coach Donahue's team faced was Kent, the only team the seventh grade didn't beat at least once.
"It was a team effort. No one player was any better than another,'" said Coach Donahue.

Cross Country

Hard work pays off

Rselves the Black Sheep, met the challenging season of five kilometer races with continuously improving times and much determination.

Varsity boys, led by Pat Smith and Hugh Dolly, finished fourth in Metro League, qualifying for state with a third place finish at districts, a first for the harriers since the teams have been required to qualify.

Coach Jan Howell felt maturity was the key to the boys' success. Dolly and Smith were close to the same ability and pushed each other to do his best.

Dolly finished first at state with a time of 17:48, his career best as well as the fastest team time. Smith had the fastest time for the team in six of the nine meets run.

Varsity girls placed fifth in Metro League, led by Meg Stiff, who finished first in all eight meets. The girls trained hard to build endurance and speed. Coach Howell felt this hard work paid off, especially for Katie Stiff, who placed first at the junior high league meet.

HUGH DOLLY pushes forward at the state cross country meet in Jefferson County in which he finished first.

PAT SMITH pulls away at the district meet near Windser High. Smith finished fourth overall.

VARSITY BASKETBALL

Dolly, Brown lead team

$S$kip Bennett coached the Golddigger's basketball team to a fourth place Metro League finish for the third year in a row with a total record of 13-9.

Hugh Dolly led the Diggers in scoring with an 18 points per game average, second highest in the Metro League, and set a school record of 84.5 percent from the free throw line. He and sophomore Brian Scherer shared the team's Most Valuable Offensive Player Award and both were named to the First Team All Conference. Dolly also made the Honorable Mention All State Team.

Craig Abrahamson led the team in rebounds. Third year starter Marty Brown was selected Most Valuable Defensive Player and Most Valuable Player.
The Lady Diggers finished their season with a record of 316 under the leadership of new head coach Amy Colladay. The team, led by seniors Patty Campbell and Michelle Croson, was dominated by 11 underclassmen who gained depth and experience.
Chosen by their teammates the Most Valuable Offensive Player, Most Valuable Defensive Player and Most Valuable Player were Laura Seymour, Julie Perri and Patty Campbell, respectively.

M S BASKETBALL

M S basketball thrives

Three groups of athletes strove to be better. Freshmen basketball set an example for the seventh and eighth grade teams as far as technique and skills needed to win.

The coaches that made this possible were Mr. Bob Warmack, ninth grade; Mr. Nick Boyer, eighth grade and Mr. Larry Fowler, seventh grade. These three coaches made the year for all three teams fun and beneficial, according to most players.
Middle School basketball team worked and spent lots of time practicing and preparing for the tough games ahead, said each coach.

Girls work together

Both coaches, Shelly Donahue, seventh, and Jeanne Otsuki, eighth, said they had an exciting year. Their teams learned to play together as a team very well, both coaches said.

The seventh grade team knew very little about basketball at the beginning, but they excelled and improved the game, said Shelly Donahue. This team played great basketball by the end of the season, winning their last three games in a row.
Leading the team to a 4-6 record were Carrie Tillie and Jill Epperson, said Coach Donahue who also said the toughest opponents were Kent and Middle Park.

The eighth grade team was very large and very aggressive, said Coach Jeanne Otsuki. The whole team was very hard working, also, she said.

ALPINE SKIING

Skiers qualify for state

 ki team had a good season according to Coach Conradt Fredell who said, "It was the best season in four years."During the season skiers learned new techniques that helped the team win.

In the past year, only juniors and seniors were racing, but now with lower classmen skiing the team improved, according to Coach Fredell.

The team pushed themselves during practice and learned new turns and stretches, practicing for two hours everyday.
"Ski team may seem like fun, but it involves a lot of hard work," said Coach Fredell.

Christine Hansen said, "There was harder work because of more dedication."

Both boys and girls came in fifth at state this year, even though courses were harder and longer than usual.
"All in all it was great," said Hansen.

Improved Year

This group of fourteen skiers always seemed to have fun no matter how they placed," said Coach Jan Howell of the cross country skiers.

Coach Howell described these young skiers as very much improved as he could see while watching them train and condition themselves for each meet. Their conditioning consisted of a lot of running and games such as soccer.

Seven of the 14 skiers qualified for state. These were Christine Hansen, Jack Terry, Eric Syrene, Rich Klusman, Nick Howell, Mike Hocevar and Craig Mills. The only girl, Christine Hansen, finished a strong 19th and for the boys Eric Syrene finished 20th place.

WRESTLING

Practice yields success

Haircuts identified the twenty wrestlers who got either Buzz, Mohawk, or got short haircuts at the beginning of the season.

After the haircuts, wrestlers became serious about practice, beginning each day at 3:10 and ending after 5 p.m. Veterans began getting into shape while new members discovered new muscles and learned new moves.

These practices brought members to be like family and pushed each other to do better every time they went to the mat.

According to coach Walt Weiss, "How hard you worked in practice determines how you will perform in competition."
Experience from the 15 vets and the dedication from the entire team helped earn a 8-4 record.

Varsity and junior varsity team captains, Dennis Vinroe and Brad Evans, encouraged each team member to push each other and to get that pin to win that match.

At Metro League Tournament Vinroe took a 3rd and a 4th, while Evans placed 1st and 2nd. Evans also was named Most Dedicated wrestlers for returning to wrestling after having an operation.

John Brenna and Cameron Williams went to State, but did not place.

Large team improves

Miss Jolene Riley, track coach, described this team as a team with positive attitudes, one that worked to improve more and more over the year.

The 56 team roster doubled all previous years. More freshmen and first-year track members came out, also. This team set a minimum of 10 personal records every meet that they went to, and set as many as 28 at one meet, said Coach Riley.

Eric Roark and Beth Perri, team captains worked very hard and did a good job for the team, according to Coach Riley.

Coach Riley could easily see the improvements of the members each meet. Most every member broke his own personal record every meet, she said.

There were many outstanding performances this year. The mile relay team of Eric Roark, Jack Terry, Hugh Dolly and Nick Howell broke all previous records in this event. Freshmen Amy Shepherd and Laura Seymour also had great performances in their events, hurdles and the high jump.

$T$he Diggers had a rough beginning, losing the first 4 in a row, but ended up the season was a different story. The Diggers won the last 5 games in a row ending the season with a record of 5-9.

Even though they ended up with a losing record, they had a great deal of talent according to Coach Dave Schuessler because of good spring weather the team had more time to practice outside to work on hitting on fielding skills.

MIKE WALLACE, and Van Swanson, provided strength in pitching for the varsity team, Swanson was also a very good hitter and a good asset to the team, according to Coach Schuessler who was assisted by Skip Bennett, and Steve Swanson.

Students aim to grasp more

English teachers worked together to improve the English department through higher standards for students who planned to go to college, attend trade schools or enter the work force. These teachers included Mr. Nick Boyer, Mr. Mike Dallas, Mrs. Linda Fowler, Mrs. Elsa Nagy, Ms. Betty Schoon, and Mrs. Laverne Travis.

One area the English department stressed was writing compositions. All English teachers devoted a day together to work with Ms. Judy Gilbert, English consultant for the Colorado Department of Education, on improving composition writing for students preparing for college.

Another area the department improved was in the distribution of books. Each classroom had the proper amount of books to supply each student, unlike previous years.

Spelling words were also stressed this year. Teachers distributed lists of words taken from SAT tests to memorize. The purpose of working with these words was for compositions and also to help improve ACT-SAT scores.

Involvement key to success

The International Christmas Fair, a new project for the foreign language department achieved its main purpose, which was according to Mrs. Cindy Lopez, "To promote foreign language learning and the understanding of foreign cultures."

The fair also did earn several hundred dollars for foreign language scholarships. This money was split between three languages.

The money was raised through the various booths offered at the fair. Food booths offered such things as pretzels, hot dogs and assorted chocolates. Also a sex appeal booth and even a marriage booth proved successful.

Foreign language department had also worked hard to promote interest in foreign language. Mrs. Elsa Nagy and Mrs. Cindy Lopez worked together and successfully stimulated students' interest in foreign language. These teachers stressed the importance of foreign language for future plans, especially college.

The total number of foreign language students, 197, represents about $31 \%$ of our school, and the percentage increases every year.
AS USUAL, Mrs. Cindy Lopez is energetically teaching French to a group of students including Angie Cagle, Jenny Smulow and Eric Hoffman.
"READ MY lips, it's easy to understand," says Mrs. Cindy Lopez to Kevin Nole. Brian Inman, Mike Haywood and George Foundos pay close attention to the instructions.

TONY YOST, Melissa Secrease, Doug Friend, Tammy Anderson and Kevin Pohle take time to practice before their performance at the International Christmas Fair.

Math, science ranks high

How many students cringed when hearing the words math and science? Teachers in these departments tried to reassure students by teaching them to think positively about equations and experiments.

Three new teachers joined veterans in teaching math: Mr. Kevin Rhode, Mrs. Sue Gould and Mrs. Chris Flenniken, who taught halftime.

In science classes, students often did not realize what they were in for. Often they watched or participated in experiments, making new discoveries, or learned new scientific terms.

Student math and science ACT and SAT scores, which consistently increased, pointed to the high degree of success of the teachers in these departments.

Mr. Warmack: 'It's real life'

While every student at the Secondary School was required to take a Social Studies course each year, an elective course International Relations was also offered. This course, designed to allow any high school student achieve more knowledge in social studies, attracted several students.

In Mr. Roger Dickinson's seventh grade world culture, students followed their books and as each country was disscussed they learned the country's culture. One method was to bring any special dish of that country to share with classmates.

Freshmen students learned who their representatives were and what they were doing in Congress. In addition they learned about checks and balance in government. Many guest speakers helped students gain a better perspective about their government.

When sophomores, students combined civics into western civ. Mrs. Wendy Naylor said, "The students are more aware of the current issues being discussed, especially with the nuclear war missiles that are threatening the world's life. They are getting more out of the class and enjoy the materials."
"It's all life," said Mr. Bob Warmack, U.S. history and government teacher, to juniors and seniors in his classes. During spring break, Mr. Warmack took some of his students to Washington D.C. for a four day tour of the capital.

BRENT BUCKLEY tries to complete a sports layout for yearbook class.

Product ends frustrations

Starting the year off in what yearbook and journalism students thought would be an easy year did not turn out that way.
Instead of a blow-off course, students found they did a lot of English work, writing copy and captions. In addition, they were interviewing students and teachers, gathering statistics for all sports, learning layout styles and meeting deadly deadlines.

Adviser Mrs. Laverne Travis tried to keep everyone in line and tried not to pull all her hair out when only a few meet deadlines or when many rolls of film turned out to be blanks.

To keep the 15 yearbook students going, pink frosted animal cookies were often given and gobbled immediately to help relieve the presures and frustrations felt by each student.

The cries for help faded into feelings of pride and accomplishment once proofsheets of yearbook pages began coming back from the company and students saw results of their hard work.

In Journalism the 10 students shared the frustration of meeting deadlines and learning new styles of writing with yearbook students. However, lack of money limited the number of publications to five, so there were fewer deadlines for them.
All and all yearbook and journalism ended up being a great and very successsful year.

Home Ec; P.E. classes fill

Physical education classes were fun as well as educational. Students played games while learning to play the correct way.

Class consisted of basketball, soccer, football, badminton and bowling, taught by Mr. Al Fraley and Mrs. Jeanne Otsuki who helped teach the different skills and fundamentals to students.

Homemaking classes, taught by Mrs. Jan McBride and Mrs. Sue Howell, increased enrollment in both high school and middle school classes.

These classes offered sewing, cooking, foods and nutrition, child care, contemporary living, clothing and texture, and interior design.

Shops, art change focus

Industrial arts and art departments changed focus with the coming of new teachers, Mark Baldwin, Mark Isabella and Virginia Unseld, who replaced Mrs. Carolyn Snow at mid-term, when the Snow's were transferred to Pueblo.

Wood shop, already known for its creativity, continued in that direction with Mr. Isabella, who brought many new ideas and a different perspective concerning projects. One of these ideas was to mass produce wall fixtures.

Veterian metals teacher Mike Horner taught his students to build jack stands for cars and other automotive parts such as bumpers and ramps.

In the arts class, Ms. Unseld let the more advanced students go their own separate ways. However, the intermediate class had to follow the projects assigned.

Band travels to compete

A total of 121 students participated in bands. This was an increase of 20 members, according to Mr. Rick Argotsinger, director, who expected this number to remain constant.

Band entered many contests, competing with other schools in the state. Two were in the fall for marching band. Others were in the spring.

Fund raisers were also sponsored in the fall. One was a German dinner. Others were the donkey basketball game, magazine sales and a pot luck dinner.

Money raised was helpful for budgeted trips to Canyon City, Boulder, Grand Junction, Greeley and Denver. Honor band went to Fort Collins.

Mr. Argotsinger said his highlight of the year was going to Grand Junction with eighth grade band and a few choir members.

Warren Tech class had more students enrolled in different classes than ever before. The classes at Warren Tech consisted of automotive, technical skills, welding, body work, small engines and computer programming.
There was 10 students enrolled in courses at Tech. The students left Idaho Springs each morning at 7:30 and returned to school around 12:00 to resume regular afternoon classes.

The special ed program was set up and supervised by Mr. Chuck Eklof to help students with academic as well as social skills.
Student goals differed for each student according to his needs or wishes, said Mrs. Diane Webster, E.B. lab teacher.
Mrs. Mary Hettinger taught P.C. lab.
In both classes there was a total of about 39 students.

Check It Out ...

Paul Lacour, Dennis Vinroe and Scott Brown say good-bye to Clear Creek; their own way.

$T$he theme for the 1985 edition of the Golddigger clearly describes the spirit currently found at Clear Creek Secondary School. More students than ever checked out the opportunities offered at our school. Sixty-four percent of the student body participated in at least one extra-curricular activity. Sixteen percent checked out their academic potential and made the honor rolls.
The students intended to continue to check out the new opportunities, new experiences and new friendships of the future. Their years at CCSS will not, however, be forgotten.
